Los Angeles Children's Chorus (LACC), lauded as “hauntingly beautiful” (Los Angeles Times), is noted for its agile bel canto sound and artistic excellence. Founded in 1986, LACC is led by Artistic Director Anne Tomlinson. It performs with LA Opera, LA Philharmonic, LA Master Chorale, LACO, Calder Quartet and Jacaranda, among others. LACC serves more than 400 children ages 6 to 18 in six progressive choirs and a First Experiences in Singing program. LACC received Chorus America’s 2014 Margaret Hillis Award for Choral Excellence, and tours extensively. The subject of three documentaries, it has appeared on NBC's “The Tonight Show,” PBS’s “Great Performances” and BBC Radio and is featured on John Williams' latest recording, John Williams & Steven Spielberg: The Ultimate Collection.
